NATIONAL SYMBOLS

Since 1990 Hungary has been an independent democratic state and a parliamentary democracy, the official name of the country is Hungary, the capital city is Budapest.

Flag: The national flag of Hungary is the tricolour with three horizontal stripes, red, white and green and the historical coat of arms.

Red: symbolizes strength,

White: symbolizes faithfulness,

Green: symbolizes hope.

The role model of the Hungarian flag was the French tricolour and became very popular during the revolution of 1848/49.

Since 20 August 2000 the flag has to be used on official buildings.

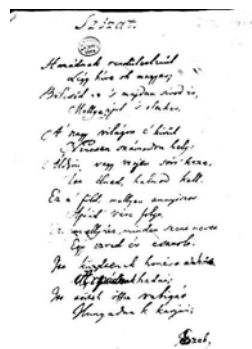

The Hungarian crown: The Hungarian crown, the oldest in Europe, was given to Saint Stephen, the first Hungarian king, on the occasion of his coronation in 1001.

The national anthem: the lyrics of national anthem of Hungary were written by Ferenc Kölcsey, the music was composed by Ferenc Erkel in the 19th century. The anthem refers to the most important historical events of the country and is played at various events.

The poem and song titled 'Szózat' can be considered as a second national anthem of Hungary. The poem was written by Mihály Vörösmarty and Béni Egressy composed the music to it. Szózat is sung at the end of the various ceremonies.

The Hungarian coat of arms:

The national coat of arms consists of the state-founder king St. Stephen's crown and the silver stripes that are said to represent the four rivers (Duna, Tisza, Dráva and Száva) while the hills represent the three mountains (Mátra, Tátra, Fátra), however, this theory is not historically founded.

PUBLIC TRANSPORT IN HUNGARY

Hungary has an extensive public transport system, particularly in the capital. The domestic transport fares are well under the European average.

Travelling inside the country:

By train:

The centre of the railway system is the capital, Budapest. The city has three main railway stations, Southern, Eastern and Western Stations. There are scheduled intercity and express lines to all the main cities and towns of Hungary.

For further information, check the schedule of the Hungarian State Railway:

<http://www.mav-start.hu/english/index.php>

By bus:

Hungary has a very well developed bus network, with which you can reach any part of the country.

Budapest has three main Bus stations:

Erzsébet tér bus terminal - Direction Western-Hungary

Népstadion bus terminal - Direction Eastern-Hungary

Árpád híd bus terminal - Direction Danube-bend

The local bus transportation is also extensive in most towns. Buses run usually from early morning until late in the evening. There are also some bus lines travelling 24/7 in Budapest.

For further information, check the schedule of VOLÁN, the Hungarian bus company.

<http://www.volan.eu/>

City public transportation:

Public transportation in the major Hungarian cities is well developed. In the main cities of the country (Budapest, Debrecen, Szeged, Miskolc) there are buses, trolleys and trams that provide convenient and rapid transport inside the towns. In Budapest you can also use the underground and HÉV (suburban railway).

By plane

The main airport of Hungary is Liszt Ferenc International Airport (Terminal 2A and Terminal 2B right next to each other). Beside Liszt Ferenc International Airport, there are altogether 19 smaller airports in Hungary. These airports welcome flights from other cities of Hungary, but the price of domestic air transport is quite high in Hungary. Two other airports, Hévíz-Balaton Airport (Sármellék - <http://www.hevizairport.com/>) and Airport Debrecen (Debrecen - <http://www.debrecenairport.com/>), have international flights but only to/from certain destinations.

UNIVERSITY TOWNS IN HUNGARY

Budapest

Budapest

Budapest is the capital city of Hungary and the country's major political, cultural, commercial, industrial and transportation centre. The fascinating, busy city is also the home of many state, denominational and foundation universities. The Eötvös Loránd University or ELTE, founded in 1635, is one of the oldest and the largest universities in Hungary.
